The most successful UCSF students not only pay careful attention to their studies, but also take time to engage with their communities, build relationships, and have fun. They have healthy habits like eating right and getting exercise, and they seek advice when they need help. Even in the early stages of their degree programs, they plan for their futures beyond UCSF, exploring career options and preparing to enter the workforce.

This website is meant to help you navigate the wide range of resources and services at UCSF that will help YOU succeed. Explore the site, and please let us know if you think something is missing here! You can also see a Student Success PowerPoint presentation or a simple list of links to resources mentioned on this site.
